Bali is renowned for its gorgeous arts; indeed it seems that everyone on the island is an artist of one sort or another. From the preparation of simple flower petal offerings to the production of impressive paintings, sculptures, woodcarvings, music and dance performances, or practically anything tangible or intangible that presents itself as a canvas, the island bursts with creative activity.

Villa Joss celebrates the artists of Bali with a beautiful painting in each of its stylish rooms. The owner is a keen collector of art, and from the colourful paintings on the walls of the villa's two living rooms and four bedrooms, to the stone lithographs in the stairwell that links them – his Bali home reflects his passion to share the island's rich artistic tradition. Explore the villa's three pavilions and be introduced not only to some of Bali's best known contemporary artists but also to the Hindu gods, quintessential ceremonies and rural landscapes that form the subjects of their work.

It's not all about the art though – this chic villa, tucked just two minutes' walk from Batu Belig beach, is a very practical holiday home. A two-storey pavilion houses the bedroom suites; two up, two down. Each is slick, with beautifully finished teak cabinetry and marble bathrooms bathed in natural light through walls of glass. The media room showcases top-notch technology; a Bose sound system zones to the dining and lounge pavilion as well as to the lazy open poolside balé – perfect for alfresco dining or movie nights under the stars. Floor-to-ceiling doors fold back to make the most of the warm tropical climate and cooling breezes straight off the Indian Ocean. Walled for privacy and staffed to perfection, the villa is a superb place to practice your own art – the art of relaxation.
